Literacy, n.

“The quality or state of being literate; knowledge of letters; condition in respect to education, esp. ability to read and write.”

-The Oxford English Dictionary

THIS IS A STORY ABOUT:

EMPOWERMENT VS. CONTROL,
TEACHING VS. LEARNING,
CONSERVATIVES VS. EDUPUNKS.

"Who are these people?
Seriously, who actually sits down after a long day at work and says,
I'm not going to watch
Lost tonight. I'm going to turn on my computer and make a movie starring my pet

About ds106

Digital Storytelling (also affectionately known as ds106) is an open, online course that happens at various times throughout the year at the University of Mary Washington... but you can join in whenever you like and leave whenever you need. This course is free to anyone who wants to take it, and the only requirements are a real computer, a hardy internet connection, preferably a domain of your own and some commodity web hosting, and all the creativity you can muster.

In August–December 2013, we ran an experimental open version of ds106 where...
